

Why do we walk the land?

So many people are walking the land and finding it helpful for their thinking. Pilgrimage has never been more popular. Why do you think this is?

What makes this relevant to you?

Do you think a connection to the land can contribute to your own wellbeing? If not, then you should definitely join us for a one day workshop, because we find that it does and many others are finding the same.

If you do, come and we will welcome your thoughts and.....

- introduce you to why the land is an important to us as part of our wellbeing and,
- help you discover your own truth about what works for you and share how you can experience true independent thinking to develop your personal connection to the land and wellbeing.

Come and listen to yourself on a one day workshop

Wednesday 14th October 2015
9.30am - 4.30pm

Mahatma Gandhi Hall
The Indian YMCA
41 Fitzroy Square
London
W1T 6AQ
United Kingdom

Book online at Eventbrite.com/
and for further information.

Cost £55.77 for the day

With Jeremy Rye (Landscape Architect)
& Christina Breene (Thinking skills specialist)

Our walking and thinking inspiration

1. Zadar, Croatia - the sea organ
2. Blackdown Hills, Surrey - expansive thinking
3. Richmond Park, London - winter on a bike
4. Assisi, Italy - on the pilgrimage route
5. Assisi, Italy - path to Paradise
6. Barbican, London - historical urban walking

www.jeremyryestudio.com
www.timetothink.com/coach/christina-breene
www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/why-do-we-walk-the-land-tickets-18187984752

Shared
Growth